Design services for upgrade of electrical systems at Northwest Armory. This project is 99.9% complete. Final modifications, punch list items and close out paperwork require active contract in place.

The A/E firm was competitively selected. If a new firm is brought in to finish the work, they couldn't use the existing work because it was not approved under their supervision. The new A/E firm would be required to certify all the work and calculations, then affix their seal. This would repeat work already completed and have unnecessary additional costs incurred.
