

RESOURCES

There are a host of available resources at a variety of levels to help higher educational institutions begin and complete the process of developing emergency responses to events that can occur. One great resource not listed are your fellow institutions. Many Illinois colleges and universities have done extensive work on developing emergency response plans. The following is a list of resource pages and organizations that can be reviewed for ideas and best practices. Again, this listing is not all-inclusive but should provide a start for any interested organizations.
