Betty Stallings, MSW, is a highly regarded international trainer, keynote speaker, consultant and author specializing in volunteer management, fundraising, leadership and board development. She teaches at universities, provides training for state, national and international conferences and consults with many non-profit organizations, public programs, hospitals and foundations. For the past 18 years, Betty has been the President of Building Better Skills whose mission is to inspire and empower people to effectively attract and utilize volunteer and financial resources to achieve their organization's mission. Read more at her website: www.bettystallings.com

Don't miss out on the volunteer talent available to achieve our important missions. Together, as teams of executives and leaders of volunteer engagement, we will explore the need to totally rethink our engagement of volunteers to match those available to us today. The workshop will explore:

1. How to develop a shared organizational philosophy/value/commitment statement to fully engage volunteers in your mission.

2. Plan the process of integrating volunteers throughout your organization.

3. Identify examples of new ways/positions to engage volunteers.

4. How to identify and respond to staff resistance to expanding volunteer involvement

Every registered agency (that requests it) will receive a link to the e-version of Betty Stallings' book: Leading the Way to Successful Volunteer Involvement: Practical Tools for Busy Executives. We think the information in Betty's book and in this workshop are critical to the success of our area's volunteer corps.
