SERIES DISCUSSION:

The Child Welfare Specialist series encompasses professional positions in the Department of Children and Family Services which perform casework/case management functions and do not serve on a continuous basis as line supervisors of professional staff. Such case management functions include specialized areas (e.g., adoptions, resources, licensing, service coordination, purchase of service, liaison to courts) as well as general casework (i.e., working with families, children and, if need be, courts to effect placement of children and maintain protection of the children and families and their rights).

Positions in this class are responsible for protecting the lives of children with the primary focus to retain the family unit if possible and, if not, to obtain placement for the child/children in a safe environment outside the family home. Child welfare services are directed toward family preservation, family reunification, adoption or attainment of a permanent living arrangement, and youth development. Certain positions performing clearly defined functions which are part of the necessary framework for, and in support of, the delivery of services are also included in this series. These functions include: intake assessment of child and family needs including reports of alleged child abuse and/or neglect; recruitment, study, approval and licensing of child care facilities; initiating steps for court proceedings and/or legal guardianship; monitoring and evaluating visits of children with natural parents; evaluating and monitoring services provided directly or purchased; recruiting or securing service providers; and service termination and follow up.

The illustrative examples of work of each level within this series are descriptive illustrations of the type of work encompassed by the series but should not be interpreted as the only Child Welfare Specialist series duties that could be performed. The Child Welfare Specialist may provide counseling and advocacy services, with therapy usually administered by others through a purchase of service contract. However, positions in the Department of Children and Family Services which may require the provision of not only counseling and advocacy services but also therapy to recipients are included in this series.

Positions within the Department of Children and Family Services where duties and responsibilities are characteristic of other specialized series are excluded from the Child Welfare Specialist series. For example, investigative staff who conduct investigations of reports of child abuse or neglect and make related final determinations (allegations indicated, or unfounded) are encompassed by the Child Protection Specialist Series.
In order for the agency to meet Council On Accreditation (COA) standards, some work roles require that employees possess certain minimum education and experience attainments, or be directly supervised by workers who meet such standards. These professional requirements have been incorporated into this classification standard, where a master’s degree in social work (MSW) reflects a preferred candidate selection criterion, and the MSW degree represents a minimum requirement at the Advanced Specialist class level.

The college or university issuing a bachelor’s or master’s degree must be accredited, and the degree program in social work must be approved by the Council on Social Work Education. The human services degrees mentioned in the requirements refer to social work, psychology, psychiatric nursing, psychiatry, mental health counseling, rehabilitation counseling, pastoral counseling, marriage and family therapy, and human services. Such degree areas may constitute a job-specific qualification requirement, where the duties of the position require the related academic and work experience background.
